The Secret in the Nautili

By Helen L. Hinkel H.L.H.

Through a Vale of Years flowered with smiles and with tears
The Human Race is run,
'Twixt innumerable streams which converge it seems
When High School Heights are won.
For thence with a sigh as Semester Shores fly,
They tumble into Life's Ocean!
And existence there means Man Molecule's share
In the play "Perpetual Motion."

Yet the drops in each stream form the organized thing
That later is one with the sea.
Though he fail—though he win—every man must begin
As a Drop of Humanity!
Thus a volume is born at High School Course Morn
In the basin of S. M. High.
The plan it pursues and the course it may choose
Are marked as it babbles by!

Events, like gay flowers, deck Monotonous Hours
Upon the Banks of Days.
Breezes of Song woo Sprite "Spirit" along
In games the Water plays.
Till Commencement Height inspires a fright
Which bids the flood to pause.
When its Vic'try is old, will its fame be told
To the tune of the Surf's applause?

If the inflowing tide mingles far—wanders wide,
And each drop separates,
Can Memory's hand weave a sea-spanning strand
Twixt Shores of Time and Fate?
When queries from posterity—the natural fruits of reverie—
Cast Doubt Shades on its course
Shines there a Lamp of History to penetrate sufficiently Forgetful Fog's remorse?

Yon shore is strewn with Natutili-jewels preserved in poetry.
Grandiloquent of Dawn
A stream might stow its secret there and other streams could stop to share
The tale ere hurrying on
A steady stream from S. M. High in '25 is rippling by
To join Life's Ocean, too.
Into each Nautilus on the shore it seals its story evermore
And sends the shell to you!

Editorial

This year there were not as many issues of the Samohi printed as there were last year, but many improvements were made—a sport page, poetry corner and information concerning various colleges and universities. It is hoped that next year's Samohi staff may attain a higher and better goal.

SENIOR HISTORY

The most successful, and perhaps the last of the Winter classes, graduated February 12, 1925.

In September, 1924, twenty-four students were organized, under the supervision of Mrs. Marie Matzinger, as the Senior A Class.

Among the members of this class, students of dramatic, athletic, musical and debating ability played important parts in the school activities.

The class event by which it will always be remembered was the Senior A dance, held January 29. The girls' gym was decorated in the class colors, red and white, carried out in Valentine effect. The balloon shower and the dancing contest helped to make the dance one of the most enjoyable affairs of the school year.

The next entertainment was in the form of an assembly, given for the entire student body. The class will and prophecy were read and the president, Pierce Sherman, gave a farewell address on behalf of the class.

Two members of the class were awarded C. S. F. pin and seal for retaining excellent scholarship throughout their term in high school. They were Beatrice Bell and Dorothy Ling.

The class of '25 entered with a bang
And made its mark with Harry Jonas in the lead.
We were welcomed by the Seniors with ice cream cones,
And we were greatly impressed by their knowledge and dignity.

1923

After a year of Freshman's foolish pranks,
We settled down to placing our class in the hall of fame.
We chose Roy Baldwin as our president
And let the school know that we were back again.

1924

Next year as Juniors, with James Neill our guide,
We traveled far on the road to fame.
"Seventeen," our Junior play, was all that could be asked,
And the Junior Prom was a great success.

1925

Our final year has been the best of all.
And now, as we look back at the days gone by,
Our only wish is that we could have done more for
Our own Alma Mater, old Samohi!

TWENTY YEARS FROM NOW

At last the ambition of my high school days was realized—I was starting on a trip around the world! As the Veliathon was soon to leave port, I joined the crowd and made my way up the gangplank.

To my surprise the porter that showed me to my room was none other than my old classmate, Al Bowen.

After resting for a short time I decided to make a tour of inspection of this beautiful oceanic liner. As I entered the large saloon, I noticed Eloise Silversparre talking to Fred Peak. Eloise now was the owner of the huge "Silverspear Gum" factory in Russia and Fred acted as her manager.

In another corner of the room I saw an exceedingly stout woman who was on her way to Africa to study costume design. Why! it was my old classmate Ethelwyn Nordskog.

I walked over the registrar's desk and found the registrar to be a man of great size. He gave his name as Harry Kaplan. I asked to see the register. The first name I recognized was that of Harry Jonas. I inquired about him and found he was on his way to England to become rector at Westminster Abbey. Lucille Hamilton's name was there and I discovered she had made her mark in the world as a fancy dancer and was on a vodvil tour.

After Vincent Keating's name I noticed the degrees, C.M., D.C.L., D.H.L., B.V.D., P.D.Q., and so on for three lines.

Grace Yates' name was there and I learned that she was now the editor of the "International Woman's World."

Among the other names I noticed those of Ellen Donnell and Virginia Walker. To my astonishment I found they were on their way to the Ti Ju Islands as missionaries.

Just as I was most engaged with the register, sounds of great confusion were heard. The door opened and the captain rushed in. To my surprise I found it to be Carroll Berry. He called the people to order and stated that the confusion was caused by the discovery of three stowaways. After a heated struggle, they gave their names as Joe Bitterlin, Grant Christensen and Howard Baker. It seems that they were escaping from the U. S. after starting a campaign to have all the teachers assassinated that believed in home work.

When the hub-bub subsided I went out upon the deck. I saw a man in uniform surrounded by eight or ten girls. It was the chief officer, Jimmy Neill, appointed to the office because of his ability to dance and entertain the ladies.

As I continued my walk around the deck I came upon a solitary man reclining in a steamer chair and all wrapped up in steamer rugs. He seemed reluctant to tell me his name, but I finally gained his confidence. It was Marshall Hickson, who was now on his way to the Sahara desert to rest after a nervous breakdown caused by his many engagements to girls who had proved untrue.

In the bow of the boat stood Jean Leslie, who was now a producer of great note. She was en route to Siam to film "Tea for Three." The role of vamp was to be played by Gertrude Loftus, while the sweet young country girl is to be Mary Anderssen. The hero is to be our old friend Cuthbert Berghell. Others in the company are Margaret Woodham, Adelaide Laing and Ernest Ketchersid.

Upon descending to the lower deck, the sound of that old familiar hymn, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," came to my ears. As I was feeling quite adventurous, I wandered on, the strains of music becoming louder at every step. I descended two more decks and found myself among the steerage passengers. The music was coming from a group of shabby looking men. Standing on a soap box leading the song was Philip Lasorella. As I came closer I gazed long and hard at the fellows. At last I recognized our old pal, Bill Bruce. One by one the identity of the others dawned upon me. They were Pierson Williams-Foote, Bob Nittinger, Al Schaub and Bob Kenaston. They never paused in their melodious singing, so I wandered back to the upper deck.

On my way, however, I met the Steward, Warren Scott, who offered to show me the kitchen. I accepted, and as I was entering the door I was nearly knocked down by a fellow carrying an immense tray of dishes. It was our old athletic manager, Johnnie Bell. Over in the far corner I saw the chef preparing some beautiful, thick-looking soup. As he turned and faced me, I was struck quite dumb for it was Fred Small! In the nearest corner was a sweet-looking little dish-washer, who had a mountain of dirty dishes beside her. Some one whispered in my ear that it was Rosebud Blondell.

I decided to return to my cabin and was accompanied by the steward as far as the barber shop, where he left me to get a hair cut by the most entertaining of barbers, Carroll Lorbeer.

For a moment I stood gazing out over the ocean. All was quiet save for the song of the steerage passengers, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

JUNIOR HISTORY

The Junior class has shown a great amount of initiative in its activities this year. The Senior rings and pins have been obtained, which gives the students a longer time to wear them. The Junior Prom, given in honor of the Seniors, proved to be the social success of the season. This was given in the Memorial Open Air Theater in the form of a dinner dance with an added attraction—Abe Lyman's Orchestra.

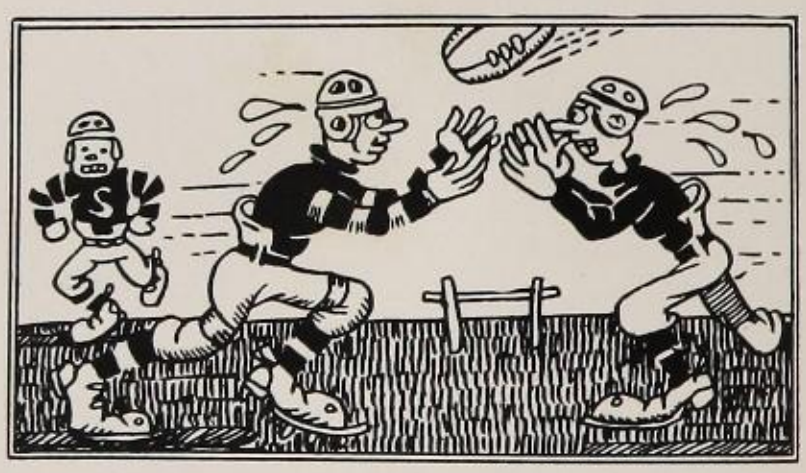
SEPT. 22—The school opened once more for business, with everyone pretending to hate to return, but actually happy to be back again at the old grind.



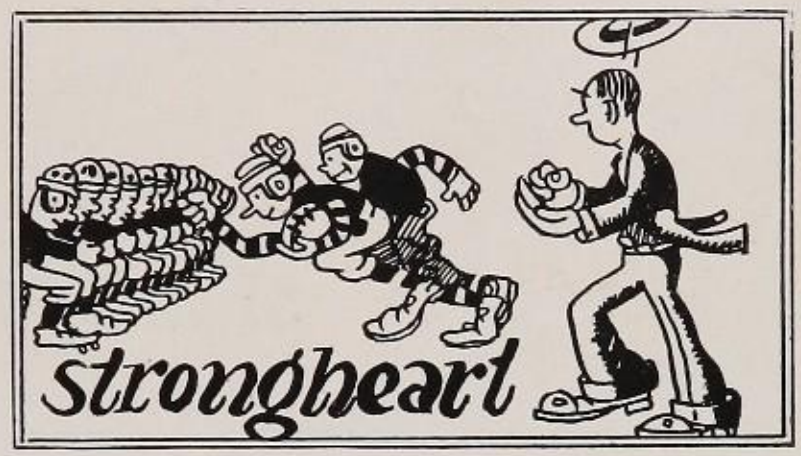
NOV. 14—San Pedro was the next victim, and 13 once more proved to be the lucky number for our victorious eleven.

OCT. 13—Venice and S. M. start the football season with a great battle, won by the Blue and Gold, of course. The fatal score was 13-1.

NOV. 14.—A. S. B. Dance. The first dance of the year, with a record attendance. A wonderful beginning for the school days to come.

NOV. 21—The League Debate with Pasadena made our would-be orators feel proud of themselves, even though we did not win the cup.

NOV. 25-26—Feminine hearts fluttered and thrilled as the great Strongheart strode across the stage, and the Senior class nearly burst with pride over the success of their class play.



DEC. 12—Alas for the dignity of education! The school went crazy on Hobo Day, and many a coating of burnt cork covered the face of a studious Senior.

JAN. 9—What a wonderful dance! The Senior A's enshrined themselves forever in the hearts of the students, and the groans were unanimous when the gayety came to an end at 11 o'clock.

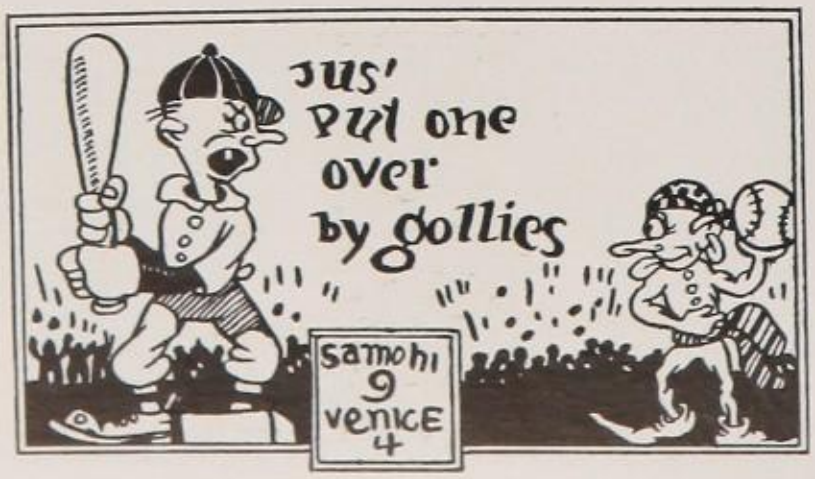
FEB. 4-6—The whole audience shouted when Jack McGowan strutted across the stage as the Mikado. The production was the most artistically perfect of any presented at the school.

FEB. 13—How could a dance fail to be interesting if all the arts combine to make it so? The decorations were Japanese, and tea was served on the balcony as a special treat.

FEB. 20-21—What a shock for the students! To find that the faculty could put on the best play of the year! "The "Show Shop" was that and more.

MAR. 13—The Sophomore Skip! What a Senior class that will be in '27, if they keep on they will break the record for social success. Their dance was perfect and so was the orchestra. What could be higher praise?

MARCH 13—"The Man in the Bowler Hat" was a clever play, presented by the public speaking students in assembly. It was very enthusiastically received by the students.

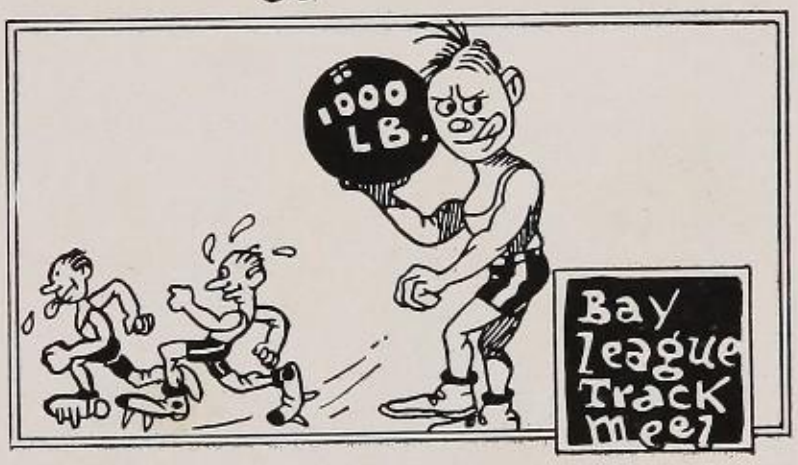


APRIL 3—The national game started again today, with the poor Gondoliers leaving the S. M. nine with the first scalp of the season.

APRIL 5—The old school nearly collapsed with joy! The Southern California Basketball Championship was ours!

APRIL 17—Tonight the girls celebrated together, and left their respective heroes outside in the cold. Gym Jinx of course!

APRIL 18—One of the stars of the Bay League track meet was the president of our Student Body, Al Bowen. Santa Monica was up to her usual standard of athletics, and made some splendid records.



MAY 1-2—"The Dictator", the Junior class play, was a hit from start to finish. The actors were unusually well cast, and played their parts in a way that filled the house both nights.

MAY 7—Everybody was on best behaviour on Parents' Day, with students anxiously showing off the buildings and grounds to fond mothers and fathers.

MAY 14-15—They called it the Boys' League Vodvil, but what could they do without the aid of the girls, who helped to put over the acts and make a real success of the Vodvil for this year?

JUNE 5-6—A beautiful pageant of color and drama was the impression received after seeing the A. S. B. play, "If I Were King." It was a great success.

JUNE 12—Of course the Junior Prom is always the most interesting dance of the year. The Seniors all felt a little sad when the wonderful dance came to an end and with it their high school days.

JUNE 23—Class Night was really Senior Night, for the Seniors were the center of attraction. The skits and plays made a fitting finish to the many activities that the Senior A class took part in.

JUNE 25—Commencement! It was more like the end of everything to the Seniors. The girls looked like a flock of lovely butterflies in their delicately-tinted dresses. The Memorial Theater was banked with flowers, making a pretty setting for the graduation ceremony.

A FLAT VACATION

GRANT CHRISTENSEN

In the course of my experiences, I have found that it's the little things in this world that tell—our flat's been telling on me. I am narrow-minded, pigeon-chested and flat-footed. Everything in our flat folds, except the folding bed—that's broken. I can't take a deep breath without rubbing the flowers off the wall paper. The rooms are so small that there is no room for doubt, and when I want to stretch my imagination, I have to go up on the roof.

When I came home from the East for my Christmas vacation, mother ushered me into the parlor through a crack in the wall leading off from the hall. At first glance at that cunning little parlor, I sank down with a gasp on the footstool—I mean on the lounge. The ceiling was so low that an African pygmy couldn't pass beneath it without lacerating his scalp. What I at first thought were electric push-buttons turned out to be doorknobs. We usually put our Christmas tree in the parlor because there was a hole in the ceiling where the plaster had fallen out, which admitted the top of the tree quite comfortably. This Christmas we chipped in with the tenants above us and got a tree tall enough so that both families could celebrate with the same tree.

And that little dining-room—I'll never forget it, as much as I'd like to. When we all sat down to a meal together, in my haste I dug my fork into the pincushion on the buffet instead of the roast chicken on the table. As I ate, my head was usually buried in the bird cage dangling from the ceiling. And Dickie—that's the name of our canary—was always mistaking my ear for a large receptacle for bird seed and gravel.

And what a tiny little kitchen, and such a lovely little range! By the way, have you ever noticed that no matter how small the kitchen, there is always room for the gas meter to get around? Even so, what big meals we had from that little kitchen: dwarfed peas, little-necked clams, baby lamb and condensed milk. Mother always did have a knack in opening cans; the only kitchen utensil we had room for was a can opener.

The first day I saw that flat was a memorable one. I complained to the management that someone had gouged two holes in the wall with a lead pencil and I was kindly informed that they were the speaking tubes. And what I at first thought was a portable letter box turned out to be a dumb waiter.

The first night I spent in that miserable flat I dreamed of wading in a pond of ice water and I awoke to find my feet protruding from the lower extremity of the bed. When I arose in the morning to comb my hair, I had to get down on my hands and knees to look in the mirror, which stood on a cigar box called a dresser, or so it seemed. I was compelled to place all my clothes on chairs and on the bed, because, after I put my hat in the closet, there was no room left for anything else.

But what a dinky little white marble bath tub we had. Our friends frequently mistook it for the soap dish. It was impossible to get in without the aid of a shoe horn because it was three sizes too small for a normal person. The sides had to be greased before getting in or you couldn't get out without the assistance of a plumber. So take my advice, if you want to grow and be healthy, don't take a flat vacation.

HE THOUGHT HE COULD

HOWARD BAKER

The hour of noon was coming fast,
When into the cafeteria passed
A Freshman, who placed upon a tray
A lunch which he would eat that day.
He thought he would!

The bread was hard, the crust so tough
That all his strength was not enough,
And, like a stone upon his tray,
He could do naught but let it "lay."
And so he did!

With meat he struggled hard and long,
And finally cut him off a thong,
And to chew began to try,
Then from his lips escaped a sigh,
"I wish I could!"

"Eat not those spuds," a Senior said,
"Or you will very soon be dead;
You soon must learn to train your eye,"
And from his heart he heaved a sigh,
"I know I did!"

But he was young, and would not heed
What wiser tongues than his had said,
And so he raised his work on high
And swallowed, and did die.
Yes, so he did!

There in the cafe so cold and gray,
Lifeless but satisfied he lay,
And from the kitchen clean and neat,
A voice came like the falling sleet,
"He thought he could!"

CATS THAT PASSED IN THE NIGHT

MARY ANDERSSEN

Mrs. Tabby and her husband, Thomas, sat on their doorstep watching their three children playing, and as they looked, they sighed. Though Mrs. Tabby was a lovely brunette and Thomas inherited but a touch of yellow from his maternal ancestor, the children all resembled that plebeian personage, being decided strawberry blondes. This color had always caused their parents to grieve, but just now Mrs. Tabby felt it was more than she could bear.

"Oh, Tom!" she sobbed. "Would you believe it? that horrid cat next door who goes in for aesthetics and puts on such airs, is giving a Gibson tea—"

"A what?"

"A Gibson tea—all black and white; you know—she—she's going to have white decorations and black cats—and she told Mrs. Puss, and Mrs. Puss told me, that it was going to be the swellest thing of the season, and she wouldn't invite our darlings for anything, for their glaring color scheme would utterly r—uin the chaste ef—fect!"

A word hissed through Thomas' whiskers which scorched their edges, but controlling himself, he turned to his wife.

"Tabitha," said he, wiping her eyes with a loving tail, "this is unbearable. Why, those cats are nobodies. Aesthetic, is she? Great Scott! I knew her when she sang on back fences of frightful reputation for one sardine per night, boot-jacks thrown in and glad to get that. While as for him, Tab, a year ago that cat came to me, whiskers streaming with tears, penniless, begging for money to speculate in hashed mice. Weakly I gave it to him; he was successful, and this—this, is my reward! But Tab, everyone jeers our children—our poor yellow kids. What can we do? Ah, by the broken nose of my great grandfather, I have it! Dye them! Dye our children fast black, and tell the neighbors it is by the intervention of a merciful Providence! They shall go to that affair tonight, and there is no time to be lost. Put on the kettle, Tab, while I cut around the corner for the dye. Ah, it is a great brain my fur covers! There you would have been sitting till night-fall, mopping your eyes, just like a tabby. If you want quick, decisive action, it takes a tom-cat to step in and do the right thing."

With heroic sacrifice, Mrs. Tabby let him go with the last word, and by the time he had returned, the steaming water was ready. Thomas measured in the dye, and his wife watched him anxiously.

"Do get enough in. Fancy, if the children should come out streaky or in spots. I should die with mortification."

"But read what it says on the bottle," said Thomas doubtfully.

"This is a new preparation of great strength, and we cannot be responsible for results, if too much is used."

"Paws and whiskers! We can't have too much! Empty in the bottle. That's right. Now come with me, I'll need assistance to get the children, highly strung and nervous as they are. They get that from your side of the family."

Thomas followed meekly, and they returned with three cherubs, kicking and screaming.

"Now," observed Mrs. Tabby thoughtfully, "I think the best way would be to put them to soak—one dip would hardly take effect. The stuff is not warm enough to hurt them, and I am going to use the old cover with holes—they can put their heads through—and we can color those afterwards. It's all right, children, you are not going to be hurt, and you may as well stop that fiendish yelling. Shut the windows, Tom, or the neighbors will think we are killing pigs."

Leaving the children to soak and howl, the exhausted parents sat down to partake of lobster and discuss the approaching triumph of the evening, when they would appear with their darlings blacker than the ace of spades, and announce proudly: "These are our jewels." At last Mrs. Tabby rose.

"I'll take them out, now," she said. "They must be dyed through and through. Oh, Tom, I hope their morals are not stained! That fast black is so penetrating!"

They hurried to the tub, where the children were sulky, and insulted to the last degree. Mrs. Tabby hastened to lift the cover, took out her darlings, and oh—horrors of horrors! She fell fainting into the paws of the petrified Thomas.

Confronting her were three black, shining little bodies, bereft of every hair. Their slim little tails stood up like slate pencils, and their furry, yellow heads, untouched by dye, looked like oranges on black rubber stems! Alas, alas, for cruelly blighted hopes, the too powerful dye had done its deadly work! Mrs. Tabby's babes were black, indeed —but bald!

Let us draw a veil over this excruciating scene. Late that night when the sounds of revelry were loudest in the house of the cat next door, two dark figures, with mysteriously-muffled objects in their arms, stole stealthily down the street to the railroad station.

Next day, the daily "Black Cat" contained this paragraph:

"Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have suddenly left for the country on account of their children's delicate health. They will remain in strict seclusion—positively no visitors received except agents for hair-restoring fluids."

ODE TO MY LOCKER

WILLIAM BRUCE

Safe behind thy portals gray
Lie the hopes of better day,
Lies my home-work all undone,
Or the note to some fair one.

Candy wrappers, half-used pencils,
Papers, pens, and like utensils—
All lie buried with my thought,
The finest work my brain has wrought.

If man e'er had a better half,
'Tis thee, O locker, filled with chaff
And a secret long years through,
This handkerchief of raven hue.

Lo! when life has run its course,
And I graduate with remorse,
Then from out thy chamber dark
Will come this sign of midnight lark.

GREAT MEN

HOWARD CAREY

I thought that I could write a verse,
In Whitcomb Riley style,
I got my paper ready
And studied quite awhile.
It was my full intention
To write about great men,
So far I cannot think of one
Who's worthy of my pen.

I've thought of Grant and Washington,
Napoleon Bonaparte,
I've thought of Snookie Ogden,
John Bell and Lincoln Hart.
I've thought of Abie Cohen,
Berghell and William Bruce,
But when I start to write of them,
I say, "Aw, what's the use?"

There are no great men nowadays,
In this great land of ours,
Except a few whose birthdays
We celebrate with flowers.
So I'll pass up these "also-rans"
And lay them on the shelf,
Then write of someone worthy
Of all this thought—Myself!

Night. A dripping fog enveloping all and gripping the throbbing sea in a maze of mystery. The long blare of a fog siren. An echo answering faintly. Silence, except for the lapping of the tiny waves burying the path of swift progress. Warning in a long blast of escaping steam. An ominous answer somewhere in the distance. The glimmer of a faint spot of light trying to penetrate a sea of fog almost as dense as the surging water beneath. Again the volley of muffled shrieks. Momentary silence. The sense of impending calamity. A mountainous shadow springing up and growing steadily larger until nothing else is visible. Crash! The groans of splitting timbers. Human voices, human cries, human shrieks. Calamity, confusion, chaos. The earnestness and warmth of life. The futility and iciness of death.

Daybreak. A quiet sea. Driftwood. A large open lifeboat containing two huddled figures was drifting aimlessly toward the horizon. One of the occupants, a huge figure of a man, big-boned and with bulging muscles, stirred, shivered, yawned and looked about him dazedly. "Well, I'll be——! Oh, well, what's the diff? This'll be one day when I don't have to shovel that damned coal. Me for some sleep." He reclined in the bottom of the boat in the full glory of his dungarees and dirty blue shirt.

By this time the other figure had roused himself and was scanning a hopeless sea. Two huge, white-bellied sharks cavorting off the stern and a panorama of endless bobbing water greeted his eye, each ripple reflecting a sun already warm. It would be a scorcher today. How good a stiff whiskey would taste to alleviate that parched, dry, nauseated feeling! For the first time in his life he could not obtain something he really desired. Not that he was overly fond of drink, for a man of forty-five could not have kept firm and in good condition had he been a constant drinker, but the fact remained that he was thirsty and that nauseated spot meant a fearful appetite, too. He began to scout around for the lifeboat's usual store of stale water, hardtack and an occasional can of corned beef, when he came upon the dozing form of his sole companion. During the excitement of last night he had not been able to get a clear impression of his fellow survivor, but now he surveyed him critically. "Common clay," he mused.

He could have touched the swerving fin of one of the sharks cutting figures around the boat and could not help a sickening shudder pass through him as he saw the tiny cruel eyes, seeming to glare balefully at him, the gleam of hundreds of needle-like teeth, bared to the sunlight, and the flash of his white belly turning in the water. Bad omen, these sharks.

At last he found the boat's small store in a locker toward the stern. He began to lay the few supplies on one of the crosswise seats. A large tin of hardtack, three cans of corned beef, a rusty can opener and the none too large water jug, which was fearfully light.

"Lay off that water!" The smaller man turned around suddenly, surprised by the ominous threat in the booming voice of the approaching mountain. He himself was well-built and quite a little larger than the average man, but seemed like a plaything, a weakling, in comparison to the tremendous form of the other. "Here, give it to me, damn you." He snatched up the jug from the seat, pulled the cork out with teeth discolored by tobacco, and drank long and deep. Finally, he was through, wiped his mouth with a grimy fist, pounded the cork back in the bottle and laid it down on the seat, snickering contemptuously at the smaller man.

"You common beast!" slowly said the other in a tone mixed with disgust and anger.

"Shut up! Don't talk back to me." His eyes gleamed with the destructive fire of hate. "I could break you in half with these." He stretched out his huge arms, slowly clenching his truly tremendous hands until the knuckles of his great fists were white and absolutely bloodless.

"Indeed? You prove yourself to be quite as crude as your appearance would indicate. It doesn't make so much difference what happens to me. I have lived and lived well." His voice became rather low and distant; he seemed to be thinking aloud, singularly oblivious to his surroundings. "I believe I've always tried to do the square thing. Nothing matters much to me in this old world but my boys, and they will always be well provided for. But how could I expect you to understand any of the finer sentiments of life?"

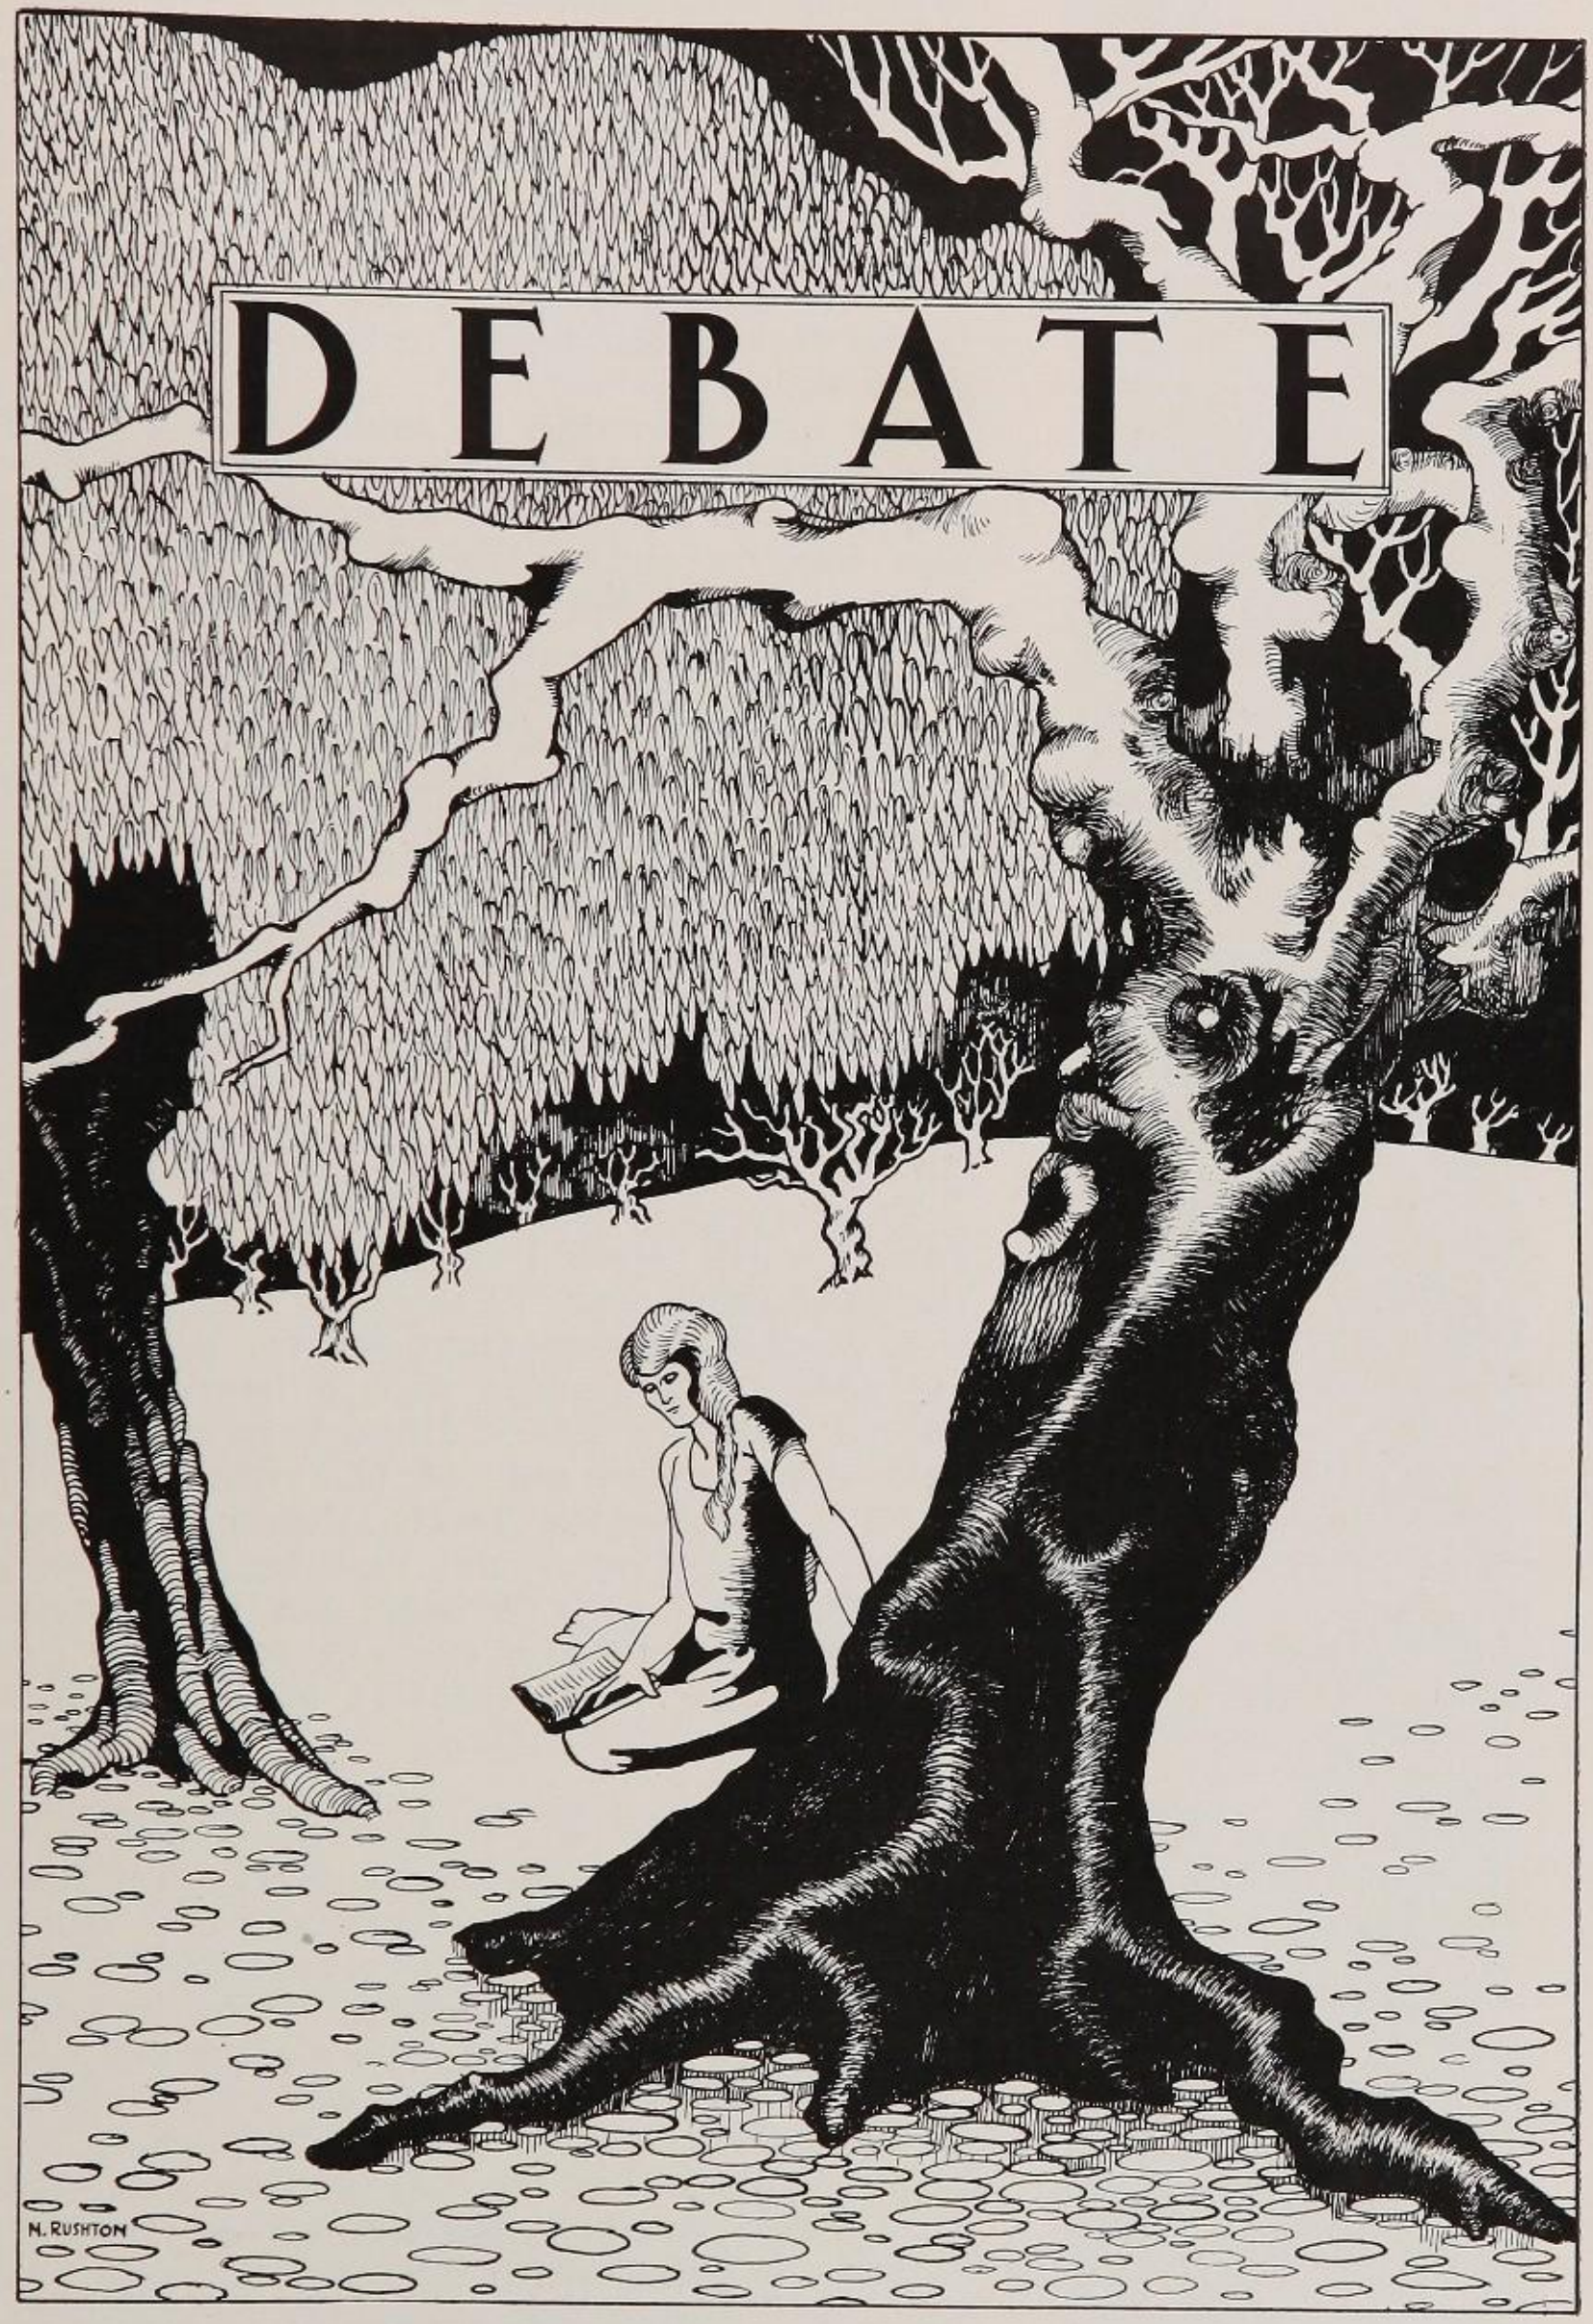
"Finer sentiments," the other man jeered, "it's all right for you to talk of finer sentiments when you haven't felt the lash of poverty, killer of high ideals, when you haven't felt the sting of the classes that money creates." And there was something in his voice as he said it that had not been there before.

In the excitement of the discussion the boat lurched to one side and a loud splash was heard. Both of the survivors looked in the direction of the splash and their hearts sank as they saw that the water jug had fallen into the water when the boat lurched and that it was just out of their reach. They tried desperately to paddle the heavy boat with their hands, but could not move it an inch.

"Well, I'll just have to swim after it," suggested the smaller man, but the other just whispered, "Look!" and pointed to the murderous fins slashing the water near the floating bottle. Being made warm by their exertions, the hot sun seemed unendurable, their thirst was all consuming and made more acute by the knowledge that for them there would never be any more water.

"What are we going to do? Shall we die of thirst in this infernal heat or shall one of us risk swimming with these hellish fish?" The brusquenes returned to the larger man: "We'll draw lots," he said, gruffly and with a little catch in his voice. "These two straws will do." He carefully picked up two straws from the bottom of the boat and held them so that only the ends showed. "You can have first choice." Neither of the men looked at each other as the smaller man slowly drew one of the straws with eyes averted, not daring to look. "Well, here goes nothing."

The rough man laid his straw thoughtfully on the seat and in a moment had plunged into the water and was swimming a fast crawl stroke. The other man looked at the straw lying on the seat. He seemed fascinated by it. At last he looked at the straw in his own hand, and a tremor ran through him. He snatched up the other straw and compared them side by side. They were equal. Here was something to think about. . . . . .



DEBATE

At last the students are awakening to the value of public speaking and debating. Heretofore the public speaking and debating classes have not been given the attention which these valuable subjects deserve. Under the leadership of Miss Morris and Miss Loughran these classes have increased both in size and number, thus giving to Miss Morris a much larger field from which to select the various debating teams.

Too much can not be said of the work of our coach, Miss Morris. She has had endless patience and has given unstintedly of her outside time in aiding the students to prepare themselves for the numerous debates of the season.

Many practice debates have been held both with colleges and high schools. U. S. C. sent down a team for a practice debate on the Japanese exclusion question, while our team journeyed to Occidental College and engaged in a debate on the same subject. Practice debates were held both with Venice and Compton High Schools on the Japanese exclusion and on child labor amendment questions.

SANTA MONICA VS. SOUTH PASADENA

The debating season began with a league debate with South Pasadena. The question for discussion was, "Resolved, that the section of the Johnson Immigration Bill which excludes the Japanese should be repealed." Carroll Lorbeer and Cuthbert Berghell upheld the negative side of this while Harold Taylor and Wesley Heath debated the affirmative side for South Pasadena. Though we lost by a 3 to 0 decision, South Pasadena was unable to refute the arguments of our team. A fair representation of Santa Monicans attended the debate.

BOYS' LEAGUE VS. GIRLS' LEAGUE

This debate was strictly a local affair, being a debate between the Boys' and Girls' Leagues on the question of annexation. The Boys' League was represented by Philip Lasorella and David Strause, who maintained that Santa Monica was better off independent, while Dorothy Sederholm and Louease Albright argued that the city of Santa Monica should be annexed to the city of Los Angeles. Interest in this contest rose to fever heat and the school authorities, seeing the powerful influence that this debate would have on the near election, ruled that there should be no decision. Both teams presented well organized arguments to a large and enthusiastic audience.

SANTA MONICA VS. SAN DIEGO

The next debate was a league meet with San Diego at San Diego. Cuthbert Berghell and Robert Armacost represented Santa Monica, upholding the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that National Defense Day is a wise policy." San Diego put up a strong argument—being especially good in the refutation—but Santa Manica's constructive argument brought home the 2 to 1 decision. This was the third debate with San Diego.

SANTA MONICA VS. LONG BEACH

Long Beach Polytechnic High School was drawn as our next and last League opponent this year. After the try-outs were completed, Marshall Hickson and David Strouse were chosen by Miss Morris to represent Santa Monica in this debate. Long Beach selected the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that capital punishment is for the best interests of society." The discussion of this most important question proved of much interest to the supporters of both schools. One feature of this debate was the lack of notes on the part of the Santa Monica debaters. Long Beach, by giving a mass of constructive argument, won the better part of the 2 to 1 decision despite the par excellence of our debaters' refutation.

JUNIORS VS. SENIORS

June 6 was the date set for the annual Junior-Senior "word throwing" contest. This year a simultaneous debate was held, both classes preparing two teams, one on each side of the question, and the class receiving the greatest number of the six judges' decisions being declared the winner. A very hot discussion ensued when the four teams clashed on the question, "Resolved that the California criminal syndicalism law should be repealed." The senior teams, composed of Marshall Hickson, Robert Armacost, Carroll Lorbeer, David Strouse, Robert Nittinger and Gilbert Carr, received stiff opposition when they met the following junior debaters: Kenneth Widasky, Edmund Briggs, Charles Miller, Samuel Newman, Douglas McArthur and John McIntyre.

A. S. B. PLAY

Frank Amo as Francois Villon

Rosebud Blondell as Lady Katherine

She became the movie actress Joan Blondell. She died of Leukemia at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica on Christmas Day, 1979, age 73.

Dramatics

The dramatic season of '25 was highly satisfactory from start to finish.

It would be impossible to speak too highly of Miss Ruby Loughran, who most willingly gave her time and strength to promote the betterment of drama at S. M. H. S.

Every production under Miss Loughran's direction proved excellent, and showed a finish unusual in high school plays.

STRONGHEART

The Senior play "Strongheart," by Wm. De Mille, tops the calendar of successes for the year. It was enthusiastically received by a large audience on November 25 and 26.

The story deals with a handsome Indian brave, who obtains a college education and gains many friends by his manly ways. He is highly esteemed by his fellow students till it is learned that he has spoken of love to the sister of his chum.

We take our hats off to:

Garfield Leon for portraying the role of the Indian brave so remarkably. Many times the audience was carried away by his intense dramatic acting and matchless characterization of Strongheart.

Frederick Peak for genuine feeling and sincere portrayal of Dick Livingston.

Vivian Seimer for being altogether charming and beautiful as Molly Livingston.

Bob Nittinger for bringing many a hearty laugh to the audience as Billy Saunders.

Leon Blunt for a real piece of acting as Black Eagle.
Vincent Shutt for acting so natural as Buckley, the football coach.
Joe Bitterlin for carrying a minor part with much ability.
Pierson Williams-Foote for bringing life into the story.
The rest of the cast added much to the brilliant success of the play.
Eloise Silversparre as Maud Weston.
Lucille Hamilton as Mrs. Nelson.
Rosebud Blondell as Dorothy Nelson.
Louease Albright as Betty Bates.
Ernest Kuhn as the Freshman.
Elmer Nowell as Read.
John Egli as Thorne.
Elmer De Force as Nash.
Richard Butler as Tad.
Carroll Berry as Josh.
William Bruce as Farley.
Hayes Hallock as the Butler.

THE SHOW SHOP

Next on the program came "The Show Shop," best known as the Faculty Play. It was proclaimed the "world's best" by all, mostly because we saw our dear teachers as they see us.

"The Show Shop" is a farce comedy by James Forbes. The story is a delightful tangle of love and misfortune. A play within a play; and both a hit. It was given on March 20 and 21 under the direction of Ruby Loughran.

Henry Newhouse as Max Rosenbaum was a riot. His Jewish dialect and comical expressions kept the audience screaming.

Ruby Loughran proved herself a finished actress, and we all agree that she was as beautiful as any of our famed movie stars.

When Olive Morris stepped on the stage everyone else looked unnecessary, so dignified was her bearing and genuine her voice.

Fred Mitchell personified pep and animation, and the plaudits of the large audience gave proof of his extreme popularity.

Rhea Featherston was a prize blonde baby doll.

The rest of the extraordinary cast consisted of:

Sadie	Caroline Judd
Hilber Tompkins	Nathan Shutt
Johnny Brinkley	Elmer Krehbiel
A Night Clerk	Vincent Shutt
Mr. Billings	Shelly B. Miller
Granby Smith	Harley Langdon
Maginnis	Frank Lord
Goldman	August Veenker
Hickson	Vincent Shutt
Steve	William Mason
Miss Donahue	Kathleen Hacker
Miss Farrington	Florence Lounsbury
Miss Toby	Helen Batcheler
Walters	Elmer Krehbiel

We enjoyed every minute of "The Show Shop" and join together in giving three healthy cheers for the faculty.

THE MIKADO

On February 4-5-6 the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs presented "The Mikado." So skillfully was the operetta staged and acted that it proved delightfully pleasant and amusing to the audience.

The Japanese settings were very realistic.

Mark Gates as Ko Ko, Lord High Executioner, proved himself a born comedian.

Alice Ranyard as Yum Yum, Lucy Peach as Pitti Sing, Fay Webb as Peep Bo worked splendidly together. Alice Ranyard's beautiful voice and Lucy Leach's charm and expression were delightful features of the opera.

Jack McGowan was clever and amusing as the Mikado of Japan, as was Harry Kaplan, the umbrella bearer.

Sherman Hunter's fine voice sounded throughout the play. He was Nanki Poo, the lover of Yum Yum.

Annabel Langstaff was the outstanding person in the cast. Annabel played Katisha, an elderly lady in love with Nanki Poo.

Warren Scott as Pish Tish and Monroe Smith as Poo Bah took a large part in making The Mikado a success.

There were huge choruses of school girls, nobles, guards and coolies.

The orchestra played splendidly. Much credit is due to Alice Rogeds, Ethel Giampaolo, Olive Morris, Josephine Roberts, Frank Lord and Jack Brooks.

THE STUDENT BODY PLAY

"If I Were King," by James Huntley McCarthy, to be given June 11 and 12, promises to be the finest kind of a play ever presented in this high school. The leading parts are taken by Frank Amo, Leo Blunt and Rosebud Blondell.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

The Senior class Night Play this year promises to be the best comedy produced in the history of S. M. H. S. The leading parts are played by Vivian Siemour, Bob Nittinger, Jim Neill, Joe Bitterlin and Lillian Morrison. Other parts are played by Edna Matheson, Bill Bruce, Carroll Lorbeer and Elmer Nowell.

THE DICTATOR

Richard Harding Davis' admirable play was presented three times by the Junior Class.

It is a herculean task to discriminate between the various abilities of the whole cast. Marquette Richards was the hero; Brooks Travers can be likened to Wallace Reid as he played the character. We do not mean that Marquette's ability depended on facial appearance alone, as his voice and splendid stage presence made his work admirable. A word of commendation must here be inserted about his valet, Simpson, played by Mart Bushnell. While it was not a large part, the opportunities it afforded for stage "business" were grasped by Bushnell with all the avidity of a professional. The proprietor of the hotel, Jose, played by Kenneth Widasky, ranked with that of Holbrook Blinn's "Bad Man." Helen Hinkel, as Juanita, the villianess, was intriguing to say the least. Her attitude while handling her knife was that of an artist. The appearance of our heroine, Betty King, was charming and she showed a great deal of intelligent interest in all that happened. Virginia Glendenning, as the wife of the American consul, carried her part most capably.

Mark Gates, as the detective, was his usual humorous self. The consul, Forest Lloyd, was quite villainous. The Mexican army was played with true abandon. The young men that portrayed the U. S. Navy were excellent for the type of manhood they represented.

If Lubitsch were a stage director, his efforts might rank with those of Miss Olive Morris, who directed this play, giving it a distinct finish usually unknown to an amateur performance.

Music

MARGARET WOODHAM

High school music is not confined to the school, but functions also in the community. For example, the orchestra and Glee Clubs are often called upon to perform at public affairs in Santa Monica. The high school organizations also support music activities in the community, such as the Philharmonic Orchestra.

Music has wide functions in the high school. In the first place, it features prominently in school activities. When have you attended a play, a debate, a contest or anything held under school auspices in the auditorium that the orchestra has not played? And on many occasions the glee clubs are called upon to contribute music.

The Music Club meetings, held in the auditorium on the fourth Thursday, draw a large attendance. The purpose of the Music Club in presenting these program is to bring the students into acquaintance with the finest music. At these programs the club features group work as the Junior and Senior Girls' Glee Clubs and the Boys' Glee Club. In these the student may see the skill necessary to use the voice correctly and to carry a voice part against other voices. Instrumental music is also featured, showing the skill necessary to play certain instruments.

Art

ALICE RANYARD

The art classes have meant a great deal to the school and to the community at large by stimulating an appreciation for beauty in its many forms. Under the direction of Mrs. Roberts, several new courses have been added this year, and their influence is seen in many places.

The decoratiotn of the Girls' League Rest Room, to be built in the balcony of the gymnasium, has been designed by the class in interior decoration. Rag rugs have been made and also splendid wall hangings of batik. This class rearranged the A. S. B. room, for which the class in posters did a four panel mural on "Sports."

The play production class has helped to make the big productions of the year artistic and dramatic successes. The sets and costume research for both the "Mikado" and "If I Were King" were made in the art classes.

The illustrations for the Nautilus are the result of the work done in the class in illustrations. We are proud of Lester Kline and his assistants.

The art classes boast of three qualities—co-operation, enthusiasm, and a real love of creative work as the characteristics of the students. They are the underlying forces that prompted the growth of the Thumbtack club, to which all students are eligible who are interested in art work.

FROM A FLAPPER'S VIEWPOINT

STUDENTS' DANCE

November 14, 1924—The students' dance started the year off right. Was it a peppy dance? Nothing short of an earthquake. High spirits? No name for it. They were in such high spirits I had to sample the punch, only for curiosity's sake, you understand, to see if—well, but there wasn't. Due to the dandy co-operation of the committees, with Marquette Richards in charge, the dance was simply superb. How everyone hated to wend his weary way homeward.

SENIOR B DANCE

January 9, 1925—Went to the Senior B dance tonight, and maybe I didn't have fun! One of the features of the evening was a dancing contest and a wonderful box of candy, which was given to the winners, Lillian Butzin and Teddy Mills. Hurrah for our future Vernon Castles. N'then Ed Silvera joined the orchestra and showed, by his pep, that he still has that Max Bouquet spirit. But why, oh why, is it always time to go home just when the dance is getting absolutely perfect?

SENIOR A DANCE

January 23, 1925—Hurrah for the Senior A's! Here's to the dance I'll never forget. You've got to hand it to the Seniors for putting over keen dances (and I'm not saying this just 'cause I'm a Senior, either). They really are pretty good. This dance showed they haven't gone to school four years for nothing. High power decorations, good refreshments, and a lively crowd. What more's necessary? They had another dancing contest and I tried out for it. I had never done it before and I was scared to death. Lots of fun after you get used to it, tho. We really should have won it, but I guess they were afraid they might have hurt Marian's or Marquette's feelings if we had won. Meow! Oh, how I hated to hear them play "Home Sweet Home." 'Tis a cruel world.

CLUB DANCE

February 13, 1925—Next, in the order of events, was the dance given by the Thumbtack, Literary, Music, Band Box and Library Clubs. You can imagine what a good party it was with so many clubs in on it. It was an Oriental affair and everyone agreed that the Chinese flappers' "flap" just as much as the American ones. The balcony was transformed into the cutest, coziest chop suey parlor and everyone ate chop suey a la cabaret style. Margaret Wadley and Elmer De Force won the dancing contest and were presented with a perfectly beautiful silver cup. It was loads of fun because it was so different.

SOPHOMORE SKIP

March 13, 1925.—Oh, I had a marvelous time tonight! The little Suffermores aren't so slow after all. I didn't expect to have such a good time because I didn't dream they could put on such a peppy dance. The decorations were good looking, too, considering who did it. And the punch, although a little weak, tasted good. It really was a good dance. Fred Du Devoire sang 'n'everything. They had two heavenly clasp dances and maybe it wasn't fun! You just got started with some one when somebody else came along. Could have danced all night! But just try to do it!

GYM JINKS

April 17, 1925.—And next the Gym Jinks! I was surprised to see so many—about every girl turned out for it—which helped to make it the success it was. The gym was wonderfully decorated and there were booths, a fish pond, n'everything! The girls looked darling and, as some were in rather abbreviated costumes, maybe its a good thing that boys weren't allowed! I never knew before what a lot of fun just girls can have. And the faculty! Some of them gave us a decided shock by dressing like men. Mrs. C. B. Smith's dog took the prize for the best skit and Alethea Marten got the prize for the best costume. All agreed that girls aren't slow when it comes to putting over dances and relished the idea of going home manless for a chance. Ah! The spirit of independence!

CLUB DANCE

May 22, 1925.—This dance, given by the Managers', Debate, Mathematics and Science clubs, next cheered our souls. These precious dances—if there were only more of them! This dance was "absotively, posolutely" a glimpse of heaven—in fact, I wouldn't have been surprised if St. Peter himself had stepped down from the clouds and spoken to me. The punch was fine, the music and decorations great, and I really don't see how I'll ever have such a good time again. But you never can tell—the Junior Prom is still in the future!

JUNIOR PROM

June 19, 1925.—And now comes the greatest event of the year—the Junior Prom—which was in the form of a dinner dance. And of all the romantic nites! Just imagine, if you can, a wonderful nite (with the stars all out), tables situated around a pond, Abe Lyman's orchestra, a happy-go-lucky crowd, and Japanese lanterns strung about, throwing a rosy glow on the scene.

The Juniors surely deserve a lot of credit for their trouble. It was all so different from any of the other Junior Proms!—was really the climax of the Seniors' four years of school. That nite will live in my memory forever!

Football

This year the football team appeared surprisingly strong with eight lettermen to form the nucleus of another heavyweight "wonder team." But ineligibility and failure to train placed us fourth in the league.

SCHEDULE OF GAMES

0—Redondo vs. Santa Monica—13

The first league game of the season opened with high enthusiasm. Our "pigskinners" traveled to Redondo and walloped them in a hurricane of wind and dust. The oval was elusive at times, but nevertheless it traveled over the Redondo goal twice. All the boys played a good game for the opening contest. Schaub and Wraith were the featuring ground gainers.

0—Gardena vs. Santa Monica—13

Santa Monica entertained Gardena on our home grounds. It was a hard fought game, although Santa Monica carried off the large end of the score. Captain Baldwin and Wraith furnished most of the thrills.

6—Huntington Park vs. Santa Monica—13

Hunting Park was very much disappointed in the outcome of this game. Through a very bad error of Samohi's safety man, the Park boys were able to score in the third quarter. Then Al Johnson and Christie were put in and they played the game of their lives. Murrell made a touchdown from a very much "fumbled" fumble.

0—Venice vs. Santa Monica—13

There could be a whole page devoted to this game, but a limited amount of space prevents it. Venice, our old rival, was badly beaten before the biggest crowd assembled at any Bay League football game. Schaub started the fireworks in the first play by running the ball through Venice for 35 yards, and from there Samohi marched right down the field for the first tally. Al Johnson furnished a thrill by making a 45 yard pass to Schaub for the remaining touchdown.

13—Compton vs. Santa Monica—0

Compton spilled the dope by taking home the bacon. Samohi's only chance of scoring came in the last five minutes of play, when by a series of line bucks we failed to cross the Compton goal line. Compton, by winning this game, won the Bay League title.

3—San Pedro vs. Santa Monica—0

Santa Monica was host to a victorious San Pedro team for the first time in many years. Samohi had a chance to win but failed.

0—Inglewood vs. Santa Monica—6

The last League game of the season was won at Inglewood by two beautiful drop-kicks, one by Chuck Christie from the 35-yard line, and one by Ted Charnock from the 37 yard line. Captain Baldwin remained out of the game. Schaub took his duties as quarter and did very well.

The first two games were forfeited because of the ineligibility of Howard Wraith.

14—Fullerton vs. Santa Monica—0

The last game of the season was played at Fullerton. The first quarter of the game was scoreless as the teams were well-matched. In the second and third quarters, respectively, Fullerton scored seven points. Schaub and Keating were our outstanding stars—playing their last game for Samohi.

Lightweights

Lightweights

The lightweights took third in the league. Severe injuries and inexperience prevented them from doing their stuff. The games played are as follows: Redondo (6), S. M. (13). The second game was forfeited by Gardena. Huntington Park (12), S. M. (0); Huntington Park took first in the Bay league. Venice (9), S. M. (0); Compton (7), S. M. (19); Inglewood (13), S. M. (19). Lightweight lettermen include: H. Jonas, B. McPhee, M. Duffield, B. Kenaston, R. Barnes, F. Snyder, R. Englebrecht, R. Johnson, B. Cowan, R. Mason, A. Pina, E. Plumer and M. Brown.

Basketball

Basketball is just becoming a prominent sport in the school. The Heavyweights, although winning only two games, put up a good fight and lost by very small margins.

The Class B quintet brought to this school the first basketball championship and much credit for this is due Coach Locke Livernash.

Class C and D did exceptionally well for the support they received. Coach Shutt's work with them was very successful, considering the abbreviated material he had to work with.

Note: Class C and D games were played on Thursday on the opposite courts from Class A and B.

LEAGUE GAMES

Santa Monica at Venice, January 15, 1925—Class A—V. (28), S. M. (6). A very bad start but plenty of fight and determination.

Class B—V. (19), S. M. (23). This game had the thrills of most Venice games. Venice won the Southern California championship last year and with most of their squad back expected to win easily. Venice led by several points until the last of the fourth quarter, when by sheer fight S. M. outplayed them and won by two baskets. No prominent stars can be mentioned because of the "5 man team." Class C—V. (5), S. M. (13); Class D—V. (19), S. M. (5).

Gardena at Santa Monica, January 23, 1925. Class A—G. (19), S. M. (14); Class B—G. (9), S. M. (35); Class C—G. (2), S. M. (45); Class D—G. (13), S. M. (12).

Redondo at Santa Monica, January 30, 1925. Class A—R. (12), S. M. (15); Class B—R. (7), S. M. (40); Class C—R. (9), S. M. (12); Class D—R. (6)), S. M. (5).

Inglewood at Santa Monica, February 6, 1925. Class A—I. (9), S. M. (8); Class B—I. (20), S. M. (27); Class C—I. (13), S. M. (9); Class D—I. (19), S. M. (5).

San Pedro at Santa Monica, February 13, 1925. Class A—S. P. (19), S. M. (11); Class B—S. P. (12), S. M. (20); Class C—S. P. (43), S. M. (33); Class D—S. P. (20), S. M. (5).

Compton at Santa Monica. Class A—C. (22), S. M. (7); Class B—C. (6), S. M. (19); Class C—C. (10), S. M. (17); Class D—C. (9), S. M. (10).

Santa Monica at Huntington Park, February 27, 1925. Class A—H. P. (6), S. M. (10). The best heavyweight game of the season, when Huntington Park League championship team met defeat at our hands. Class B—H. P. (21), S. M. (18). To complete the upsets our championship quintet met their first defeat. Class C—H. P. (8), S. M. (15); Class D—H. P. (6), S. M. (12).

Semi-Finals Southern California

Glendale vs. Santa Monica, March 6, 1925. Class B—G. (8), S. M. (22). The team certainly looked good and outplayed Glendale every minute.

Owensmouth vs. Santa Monica, March 6, 1925. Class B—O. (4), S. M. (33). Owensmouth made the first basket and two free throws but after that they had no chance at all.

Finals Southern California Championship

Whittier vs. Santa Monica, March 21, 1925. Class B—W. (12), S. M. (19). A very close game played on U. S. C. court, deciding the Southern California championship team.

Track Lettermen

Track

Santa Monica's distance team won the Occidental 2¼ miles cross-country race for the second time. One more win and the trophy is ours for good. The team was composed of Wilson, Maule, Mortenson, Hostetler, Cary, Bothyne, Amo, McComb and Carr.

A medley meet was substituted for the annual Bay League cross country. Santa Monica took third in this and we lost our much coveted cross country trophy.

Santa Monica did not do so well in the Bay League track meet, taking fourth, but placed men in practically every event. In the Bay League preliminaries Santa Monica looked fine, but in the finals the competition was too close.

Captain Al Bowen is undoubtedly the greatest track star Santa Monica ever produced. He repeated his victories of last year and more. He broke his own record of 5 ft. 9¾ in. He tied with Rose of Inglewood with a record leap in the broad jump. Al, running the 220 yard hurdles, took a close second.

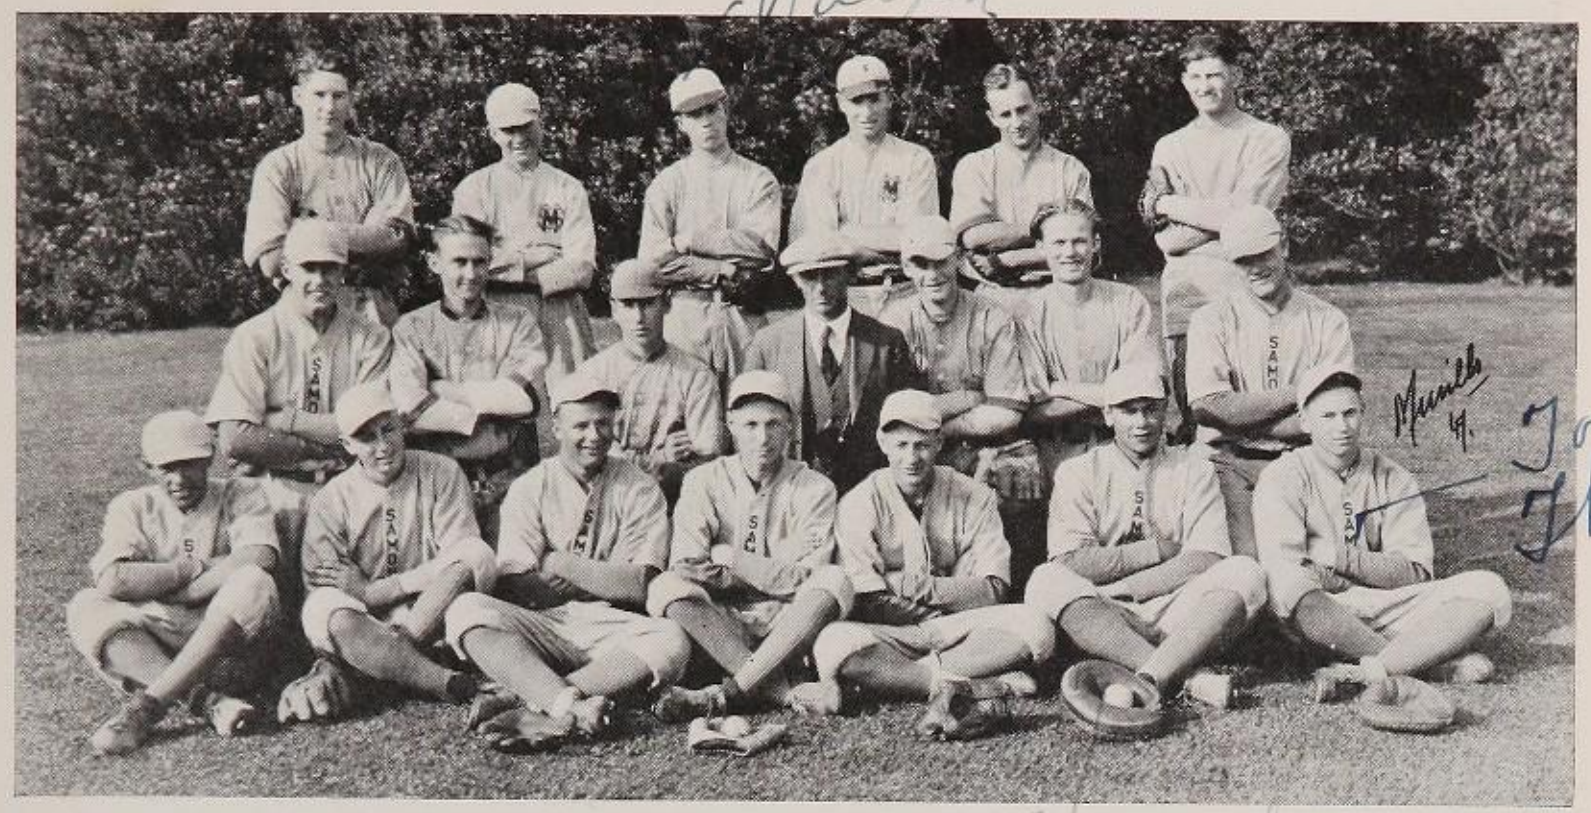
Al Bowen shined again in the Southern California track meet when he won the high jump at 5 ft. 10 in. and attempted to break Coggeshell's record of 6 ft. 2¼ in. He came dangerously close with a leap of 6 ft. 1 in. In the state meet at Palo Alto he broke the record of 6 ft. 1¼ in. with a leap of 6 ft. 1½ in.

The other cinder path artists made letters in the following Bay League events: Butler, 4th and 3rd in the 880 yard run and mile, respectively; Plumer, 4th and 5th in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, respectively; Rucker, 2nd in 220 yard dash; Treharne, 5th in the 440 yard dash; Bowen, 1st, tie for 1st and 2nd in the high jump, broad jump and low hurdles, respectively; Darling, 3rd in the shot put. The relay team was composed of Rucker, Murrel, Treharne and Plumer, and fought for a close third.

There were two duel meets scheduled this year with South Pasadena and San Fernando, both were called off, leaving the team without any practice tilts the entire season.

Santa Monica won the Freshman-Sophomore Bay League meet held at Venice.

Track Squad



Baseball Squad

Baseball

Baseball was divided into two sections this year and the winners of each section will play off for the Bay League championship. As this book goes to press it was not determined as to what place we will have in our section, although three defeats and two victories will probably net us fourth place.

SCHEDULE OF GAMES

4—Venice vs. Santa Monica—9

A very green bunch took the field to surprise everyone that attends Venice High. Pina and "Lefty" Yuill did some remarkable pitching with catcher Machado backing them up. Captain Berry showed his ability as shortstop. It is said that our victory at this game is spelled S-h-u-t-t.

5—Compton vs. Santa Monica—2

Compton proved to be our stumbling block again by rallying in the ninth inning to make four runs to win the game. Compton took first in our section and looks like the champion.

10—San Pedro vs. Santa Monica—8

The squad took a trip to San Pedro to lose to the Pedroites in a combination "track meet" and baseball game. Both Santa Monica and San Pedro had the bases full all the time but Pedro managed to slip over more runs.

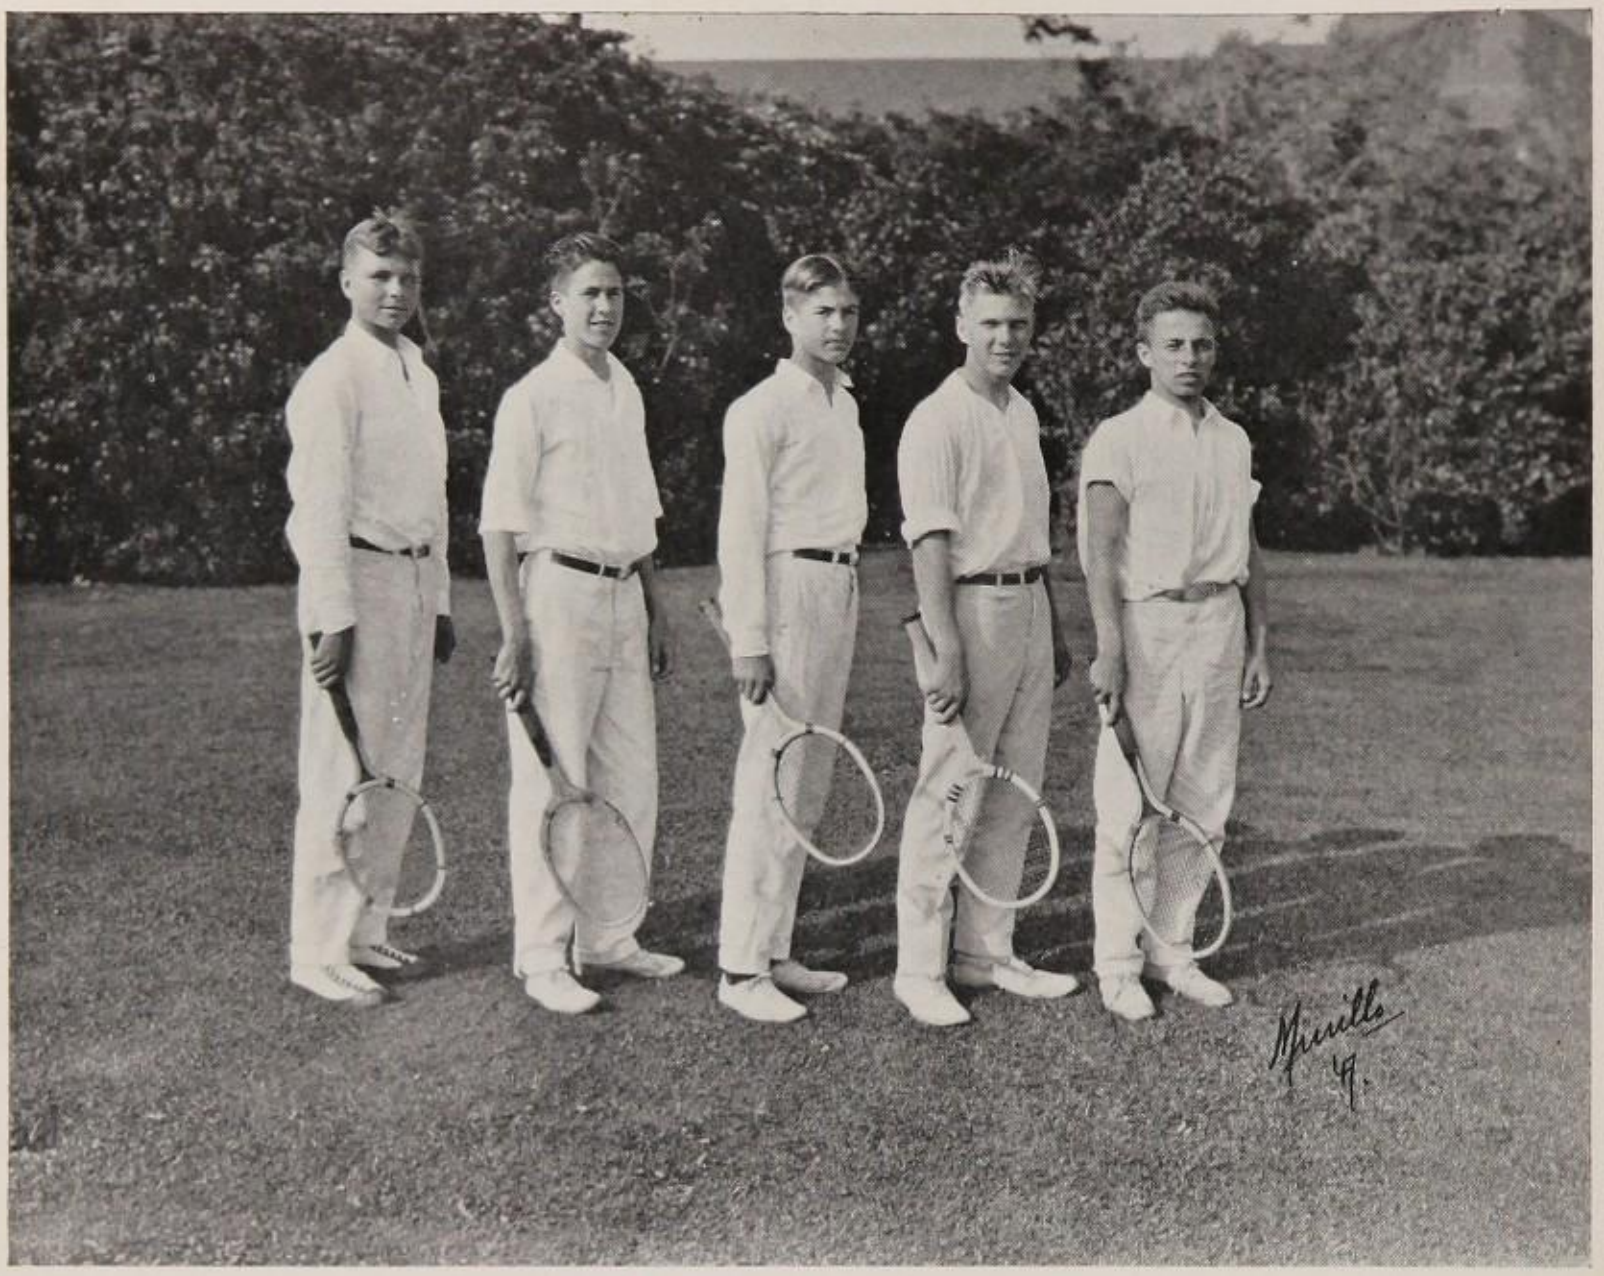
4—Huntington Park vs. Santa Monica—2

Last year's championship Huntington Park team and their pitcher Garibaldi showed superior playing by decisively beating us on our home grounds. Pina showed Huntington Park some pitching, also.

0—Inglewood vs. Santa Monica—6

The team "got mad" and won the last game of the season. Pina pitched seven innings to be relieved by Yuill. "Lefty" found himself after an all season slump. Of his first ten pitched balls there were nine strikes.

Note: Captain Carol Berry has played every inning of every game of his four years of baseball.



Tennis Team

Tennis

Tennis has been arranged a little differently this year than in former years. The tennis teams traveled with the baseball teams and played two singles and two doubles matches. There was not any Bay League finals and scoring is as follows: 1st singles, 3 points; 1st doubles, 3 points; 2nd singles, 2 points; 2nd doubles, 1 point. The school making the highest number of points wins.

The team members are as placed on the team: J. Doeg (captain), B. Kuns, J. Bitterlin, P. Smith, F. Carlson and J. Hamilton.

As this goes to press the unofficial report of the results gives San Pedro the Bay League title with Santa Monica second. John Doeg, who brought the big Fullerton trophy to the school this year, represented us in the Southern California tournament.

Golf

Golf is fast becoming a prominent sport in the high schools. In the Southern League, Santa Monica, with inexperienced material, took about sixth place. The members of the team were: J. Doeg, Gruber, Card, R. Mason and E. Bothyne, the latter was ineligible after February.

Girls' Athletics

OUR CLUB

GERTRUDE LOFTUS, G. A. C. PRESIDENT

The year of 1925 saw a reorganization of the Girls' Athletic Club, which was brought about by the introduction of a point system. This system places every girl on an equal basis. Fifty points are required for membership. After joining, an average of ten points a semester must be earned. If a girl wins five hundred points, she is awarded, for her efforts, an all-around athletic pin. On obtaining eight hundred points she receives the final award of an eight-inch letter, presented by the Associated Student Body. Meetings with other schools have been abolished and inter-class competition established to create greater enthusiasm among the girls.

In order to bid farewell to one sport and to herald in another a big spread is held in the gymnasium. Numerals coming to the first teams are awarded at these spreads.

From all class teams girls are chosen to form one team, known as the honorary school team, which is made up of the girls who have best shown good sportsmanship, skill and spirit throughout the season.

This new arrangement has met with hearty approval, and, though still young, holds a promise for the girls of Santa Monica High School which can no longer be denied—a promise of a freer, healthier, happier and more wholesome life.

Basketball Team

BASKETBALL

Betty Sargent, Manager

This year more interest was shown in basketball than ever before because of the change of the honor awards and the management. There were about 100 girls out, and two class teams were chosen from each upper class and three from the Sophomores. The only inter-school games played this year were three with Venice, in which our Junior and Senior first teams went over to Venice and played their Junior and Senior first teams, while their Sophomore first team came to Santa Monica to play our Sophomore first team. Venice came out victor in the Junior and Senior games while Santa Monica won the Sophomore game.

In our inter-class play-off the Seniors took first place, the Juniors second, and the Sophomores third, while, for the second teams, the Sophomores took first place, the Juniors second and the Seniors third.

Those comprising the victorious Senior team were:

Dorothy Ling, Betty Sargent, Maria Rivas.....Forwards
La Kethel Fish, Honore Moxley.....Center
Sheila Scott, Gertrude Loftus.....Running Center
Betty Brown, Bernice Stout, Belle Waltz.....Guards

Honorable mention should be made of the Sophomore third team, which played the second teams and made those teams fight for their score even though the third team was not the winner.

At the close of the season, at a peppy basketball spread, the honorary varsity team was named. Those so honored were:

Joyce Franks.....Center
Ruth Schick, Helen Irwin.....—.....Running Center
Elsie Leach, Betty Sargent, Maria Rivas.....Forwards
Betty Brown, Cornelia Verplank, Bernice Stout,
Belle Waltz.....Guards

Soccer Team

SOCCER

DOROTHY ROYER, MANAGER

Although soccer was a new sport introduced into S. M. H. S. this year, it was taken up with great enthusiasm by the girls. The season was started by a soccer rally held in the Memorial Theatre. At this rally class managers were elected. Betty Brown was elected Senior manager, Helen Irwin, Junior, and Helen Campbell, Sophomore. Under the leadership of these managers practice was started.

After a few weeks of hard practice the teams were chosen and the games played off. Each team played six games and the team with the highest percentage at the end of the season was victorious. Keen rivalry was shown between the Junior and Senior teams in the last game of the season. Each team had four games to their credit and the winning of this game decided the championship. The Junior team was victorious, while the Seniors came second.

The season ended with a spread in the girls' gym after the Junior-Senior game. A supper was served, numerals awarded and the honorary varsity team announced.

All teams received numerals. The honorary varisity consisted of Tiny Franklin, Helen Irwin, Ruth Schick, Helen Green, Joyce Franks, Veronica McIsaac, Edna Wemple, Belle Waltz, Arline Coon, Maria Rivas, Ruth Haw, Betty Brown, Sheila Scott, Betty Sargent.

All the girls who came out for soccer had a very good time. It is hoped that next year will be an even more successful soccer year.

Tennis Team

GIRLS' TENNIS

ALICE THOMAN, MANAGER

On account of the early date of the printing of the Nautilus, the final scores for this tennis season could not be secured. The Bay League tennis tournament for the league championship in girls' singles and doubles, as far as can be judged at present, is very promising.

The girls should win three points towards the big cup this year by copping first place in both girls' singles and doubles. This, it is hoped, will be found to be true in the near future.

One match has been played up to the present date. Venice, our rival, was the victim. The girls won all honors of the day, losing no matches.

1st singles—6-1, 6-0.
2nd singles—6-1, 6-0.
1st doubles—6-1, 6-2.
2nd doubles—6-0, 6-0.

The team this season was composed of Marjorie Gladman, first singles; Doris Doeg, second singles; Alice Thoman, captain, and Barbara Ward, first doubles; Elsie Leach and Helen Lorbeer, second doubles.

Volleyball Team

VOLLEYBALL

BERNICE STOUT, MANAGER

The volleyball teams of 1924-25 deserve much praise and credit. The girls worked conscientiously under Miss Carroll's careful instruction and made volleyball one of the most successful sports of the year.

Sixty girls reported for volleyball and thirty-three of them made first teams. There were no school teams this year, therefore we had few inter-scholastic games. The S. M. H. S. class team played Venice and our Sophomores were victorious. The Juniors and Seniors played well and fought hard, but Venice won in spite of their efforts.

The Sophomores won the inter-class volleyball tournament. Each class played three sets of games, and the class that won the most games, which was the Sophomores, received the final honors. The members of the winning team were:

Elizabeth Stevens
Jane Handley
Ruth Hicker
Adeline Shetler
Rosalyn Virgil
Margaret Murphy
Dorothea Fountain
Elma Emerson
Mary Louise Townsend

The honorary school team was chosen from the various classes. The members of this team were:

Jane Handley
Jane Haley
Corrine Burns
Laura Golder
Thelma Fletcher
Cornelia Verplank
Elizabeth Stevens
Ruth Rogers
Clara Mae Parsons
Doris Badgley
Bernice Stout

TRACK TEAM

BETTY SARGENT, MANAGER

The track season this year was very successful. About 85 girls reported and were out for practice almost every night. Two important events came off during track season, which were the inter-class field meet and the inter-school field meet.

The inter-class meet was held on April 1, which was started by a posture parade in the open air theatre. The Seniors won first place for appearance, while the Juniors won first place for posture. The other events were: Shuttle relay, baton relay, basketball throw for distance and baseball throw for distance and for accuracy. The results of the entire meet were: Juniors first place, Seniors second and Sophomores third. Keen competition was felt, and the Juniors managed to run away with the victory by only one point.

The inter-school field meet was held April 25 at Inglewood and about 200 of Samohi's girls were represented along with the other four schools. The transportation of the girls was furnished by the Student Body and in this way more girls were able to turn out.

HIKING

ELSA BRUNNER, MANAGER

A new activity, which has been started at Santa Monica High School this year, is hiking, and it has met with much success among the girls.

Hikes were taken outside of school by individual parties of girls and four hikes were taken after school and on Saturdays that were sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Club and chaperoned by Miss Petroskey and Miss Carroll. These hikes were enjoyed by everyone who participated in them, as they usually ended in a weinie roast or picnic in some canyon or on the beach.

Points were given to those who hiked over five miles at one time and who hiked over twenty-five miles in one semester. In this way many points were gained by the girls toward the Girls' Athletic Club membership.

SWIMMING

MARGARET WADLEY, MANAGER

Swimming this year has been well supported. Simple tests were arranged and approved by the Girls' Athletic Club Executive Board. The tests were given in the Venice Plunge on Thursday, April 2, and consisted of the following events:

1. Swim 50 yards free style.
2. Tread water two minutes.
3. Float for two minutes.
4. Be able to do two of the following strokes
   a. Back Stroke.
   b. Side Stroke.
   d. Trudgeon.
   c. Australian Crawl.
   e. Side Over-arm.
5. Be able to do one simple dive.

Eighteen girls were given this test, and were judged for breathing and form. Ten girls passed this test and were given fifty points towards membership in the G. A. C.

Miss Dunbar of the Lincoln Junior High School organized a class in Red Cross Life Saving. Nineteen girls turned out and many were successful in passing the test. These received the Junior Life Saving Certificate.

To College, Or Work— Which?

Many young people from the leading homes of the Bay District study shorthand and typewriting at Willis Business School before entering College. Their parents know that a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting makes it less difficult to attain better grades.

If you are planning to work, unless business trained, your opportunities for success are poor. A large percentage of the executives of America used a Business College training as a stepping-stone to success. As a matter of fact, practically every executive in America attended some Business School.

Regardless of your plans, a course in Business School is the best investment any Senior can possibly make. Ask any banker or business man if this is not true.

Our school is in session throughout the year. No contracts to sign, tuition payable by month only.

The finest young people of Santa Monica Bay make up our student body. The leading business houses on the Bay employ our students.

"Be careful, mate," the Darkie shouted. "You made me bite mah tongue."

Blondell: They're not delivering any more mail to Cleveland.

Myton: Why not?

Blondell: He's dead.

* * *

"If you were my husband," said the woman, "I'd give you poison."

"If you were my wife," retorted the man, "I'd take it."

* * *

"Sign your name, please, Mr. Corn Tassel," said the hotel clerk. "The other guests would like to register."

"Don't you try to hurry your Uncle Hiram, sonny. I don't never sign nothin' that I don't read carefully."

Kenaston: How would you like riding in a patrol wagon?

Rastus Johnson: Oh, it might do in a pinch.

Father drank so much beer that every time he swallowed potatoes you could hear them splash.

* * *

Can You Imagine

Claus Anderson as football captain.

Several well-known girls without their "15-year-old wonders."

Vivien without Roy.

Mr. Schreiber without his bow tie.

Mr. Fehling with dandruff on his coat collar.

Jim Neill without freckles.

Eloise Silversparre without her club (?) pins.

Smoot without Brackett.

Nittinger without Little Halitosis. (Auto not otherwise!)—Ed. Note.

Marquette Richards grown up and sensible.

Louease Albright or John Bell not making an announcement.

Tyler Lee playing the title role in "Strongheart."

Bill McDonald six feet tall.

Freddy Peak not worrying about whether his necktie is just right or his hat is on straight.

Eddie Briggs without the pep.

Stuart Lillingston as A. S. B. president.

Can you? We can't.

Fair Motorist: Really, I didn't hit you intentionally.

Irate Victim: What have you got that bumper on your car for if you aren't aiming to hit someone?

An "eating competition" was organized in a mining town in the north of England. One competitor, a giant collier, six feet in height and broad in proportion, succeeded in disposing of a leg of mutton, a plentiful supply of vegetables, and a plum pudding, washed down with copious drafts of ale. He was unanimously declared the winner, and was being triumphantly escorted home, when he turned to his admirers and said:

"Eh, lads, say don't hie any nowt of this to my old woman, or she won't give me no dinner!"

Health Hint

"Take care of your teeth," says an advertisement. "We have nothing but scorn for the careless person who leaves them smiling inanely in the bathroom."

It's easy enough to be pleasant
In a coupe all warm and jolly,
But the girl worth while
Is the one who can smile
When you're taking her home in a trolley.

Did you ever hear of a hen who mislaid an egg?

Bud: Gosh you're dumb! Why don't you buy an encyclopedia?

Bob: The pedals hurt my feet.

Cop: What's the matter? A fight?

Battered Drunk: Jush a bout!

She: Can you dance?

He: Half way.

She: What do you mean half way?

He: I can hold on but I can't move my feet.

The following are on the absent minded Prof. who:

Throws his books in the trash pile and takes his lunch scraps to class.

Kisses his shoes good night and shoves his daughter under the bed.

Puts his umbrella to bed and stands in the umbrella stand all night.

Puts his dirty shirt to bed and slides down the clothes chute.

Kissed the maid and told his wife to get to work.

Botanists

Tim: Where do the bugs go in winter?

Mr. Knupp: Search me.

His new mustache makes me laugh.

Yes, it tickles me too!

* * *

Teacher: What are ears for?

Smiley: To keep me from slipping through my collar.

appreciate the patronage and support given them by the students and in turn are glad to support the various activities of the A. S. B. on an equal ratio.

Also, students should remember that as they patronize local stores they are enlarging the business of Santa Monica and are thereby creating positions for themselves when such positions are desired, either after graduation or during vacation.

So let us co-operate and succeed, for co-operation is the basis for success.

JOSH AND NONSENSE

Everything O. K.

'Twas late and few were in the restaurant. The three men had ordered ham sandwiches. Just as they started to eat, a mouse behind the counter gave a squeak. One of the men quickly opened his sandwich.

"Ain't in mine," he cheerfully announced.

"I've come to fix that old tub in the kitchen."

"Oh mama! Here's the doctor to see the cook!"

A Hint to the Seniors
Little rows of zeros,
Not so very quaint,
Make your graduation
Look as though it ain't.

Little Chu Fu was a Chinaman and walking down a train track he met Choo Choo. Choo Choo went too too, but Chu Fu didn't hear Choo Choo. Poor little Chu Fu, he is all Goo Goo.
